Mid-Missouri CHE Minimum Standards of Conduct

1. All Mid-MO CHE events are chaperoned by parents. Students are expected to respect and comply with the parent leaders.
2. The Mid-MO CHE board strongly encourages that members who actively exhibit contagious illness refrain from attending an event.
3. No alcohol, smoking, drugs or anything that could cause harm to oneself or others.
4. Good manners and respect for others through words and actions are required. No cursing, rude talk, gossip, or excessive teasing.
5. No public displays of affection (PDA). Mid-MO CHE activities are not for match-making purposes. Our events are designed for "group," not "couple" activities.
6. Respect the property where the event is taking place and clean up after yourself.
7. Dress modestly and appropriately. The purpose of the event will dictate the clothing expected. We realize that standards of dress vary. However, we are reminding all attendees that these are Christian events. As such, the Biblical admonitions to dress modestly apply.
8. Please RSVP promptly if the event coordinator requests one. Do not show up unannounced. Please notify event coordinator of cancellations ASAP for events requiring RSVP.
9. If a youth disobeys the guidelines set forth above:
  - a. He/she will be spoken to by an adult host;
  - b. If the objectionable behavior continues, he/she will be spoken to by 2 to 3 adult hosts, and their parents if present.
  - c. If the objectionable behavior continues, the parent will be contacted and the youth must be removed from the activity. If a parent picks up a youth from an activity for unacceptable behavior, the youth will be welcomed back to the next event if he/she agrees to behave according to the guidelines. If a parent is called and does not come and pick up the youth from the activity in a timely manner, the youth will not be welcome back to these events the rest of the school year

CHE Social Groups*

The social groups provide CHE families the opportunity to get to know each other and develop friendships in a Christian atmosphere. Small committees of parents will meet their co-op obligation planning and facilitating activities for each social group. Social groups may be combined if a sufficient number of leaders are not available. Chaperoning/attendance alone does not meet the service obligation.

Unless otherwise advised, one parent from each family of teens are expected to attend events with his/her children and act as chaperone. Sometimes, this is not necessary. Please check with the event coordinator ahead of time.

*Teens: The teen group provides social and/or educational activities for students ranging in age from 13 up to graduation. Teens must have a signed code of conduct on file prior to participating in teen events or teen council. Parents of teens are encouraged to coordinate with the Teen group chair to volunteer to serve at one of the major Teen events along with other events as scheduled.

*Teen Council: A small leadership and service group of teens meeting monthly to learn leadership skills by participating in formal meeting to plan activities. (Teen Council parents serve in an advisory position, this is not a full committee.)

*Young Explorers: This group provides social and/or educational activities for students in Kindergarten to 10 years old.

*Bright Beginners: This group provides social and/or educational activities for preschool students.
